SOUTH SIDE.

END OF THE FORTY HOURS.

A solemn High Mass will be sung at St. John's Church this morning. The forty hours devotion which opened on Sunday at St. John's church will be brought to a close with a solemn high mass at 10 o'clock this morning.

The attendance at the devotions has been remarkable, and much good has resulted. At the morning masses and evening services the church has been scarcely able to contain the number of people. This was true particularly of the evening services.

Last night the closing sermon was preached by Rev. J. J. McCabe, of Avoca, and so great was the desire to hear him that the church would have been crowded if it were much larger.

Father McCabe's effort was a gem of eloquence as all of his pupils utterances on that occasion are. The effect of his words maintained a breathless silence from the beginning of his discourse until the end. Father Melley, the pastor, can feel happy over the beneficial result of the service.

Her Nerve Had Been Tested.

It was a terrible risk. Not a man was there in all the vast throng who dared the dangers of hissing flames and tottering walls.

Human lives hung in jeopardy, waiting in awful suspense for some intrepid rescuer. "I will save them."

A thousand faces turned eagerly at the sound. With flaming eyes and heaving bosom she saw a moment. Fragile as she was there was that in her aspect which filled the multitude with awe. Spellbound, the people breathed not.

A burly fireman had barred the way of the heroine. "It is foolhardy," he exclaimed. "Have you no fear, girl?" She laughed scornfully. "Look you!"

She turned a withering glance upon the man. "For ten years I have worn in public every species of dress, from garments brought out during that time. Do you imagine I am afraid of anything?"

With a bound she was lost to view among the blazing timbers.—Detroit Tribune.

How the Ancients Moved Stone.

An unexplained obelisk in a quarry at Syene shows how the ancients separated these immense monoliths from the native rock. A groove marking the boundary of the stone contained a number of holes into which wooden wedges were firmly driven.

The groove was then filled with water and the swelled wedges cracked the granite the whole length of the stone. The detached block was then pushed forward upon rollers made from palm trees to a large timber raft on the edge of the Nile, where it remained until the next inundation floated the raft to the city where the obelisk was to be set up.

Thousands of hands then pushed it on rollers up an inclined plane to the top of the temple, where it was to stand. The pedestal had previously been placed in position, and a firm causeway of sand covered with planks led to the top of it. Then, by means of rollers, levers and ropes made of date palm, the obelisk was gradually hoisted into its upright position. In no case has an obelisk been found to be out of the true perpendicular.—Public Opinion.

A Stout Pedestrian.

One morning, in Glenochry, Professor Wilson ("Christopher North") started out early to fish in Loch Tolla. His nearest point was thirteen miles from his lodging. On reaching it, and unwearying the butt end of his fishing rod to get the top of the boat he had forgotten it. Nothing daunted, he walked back, breakfasted, made his rod complete and walked again to Loch Tolla. All the long summer day he fished, and after sunset started for home with a full basket. Feeling somewhat fatigued and passing a familiar farmhouse, he stopped to ask for food.

It was near midnight, and he routed the family from bed. The mistress brought him a full bottle of whisky and a can of milk. He poured half the whisky into the milk and drank it off at a draft. While his hostess was still staring in amazement he poured the remaining milk and whisky together and finished the mixture. He then proceeded homeward, having performed a journey of over fifty miles.—Manchester (England) Times.

Scenes of Two Great Powers. In 1840 the Teunysun family removed to Tunbridge Wells, and in the following year to Boxley, near Maidstone, a locality associated with the closing scene, the splendid epitaphium, of the "In Memoriam" for here in October, 1842, the poet's youngest daughter, Emily, died. Her father, Edmund Lav Lubington, professor of Greek in Glasgow university, Glasgow of Park house, the seat of the Lubingtons, are preserved, too, in the prologue to "The Princess"—Good Words.

"What a Lovely Complexion!" "Isn't her complexion charming!" These are expressions we hear every day, made by women in reference to others, which reveal a pardonable envy, and one which can be gratified. The secret of good health, as indicated by a rich color, and well-rounded figure, is found in a good digestion. Shopping tours, dances and entertainments indulged in, will leave you utterly fagged out, unless you are obtaining all the value from your food; and it is so easy to accomplish this that you will wonder no one has spoken to you of it before. Try with each meal, and at bed-time, a wineglassful or more of the Genuine Johann Hoff's Malt Extract, which you will find to be most acceptable to the palate as a beverage, and will lift you right on to the plane of the vivacious and trim-fringed sister you admire so much, and who seems capable of enduring endless fatigue. Then, again, we must remember the nursing mother, where two lives are dependent upon the proper nourishing of the one. Surely nothing can be more valuable to the mother, nor give more comfort to the baby, by producing a generous flow of milk, than the GENUINE JOHANN HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT. Defective nutrition is the foundation of all ailments. A healthy, well-nourished body can withstand almost any disease. There is resistance power in such a body. I have been taking the Genuine Johann Hoff's Malt Extract myself for a year or so, and find it a most excellent tonic and appetizer. Without doubt it is the best Malt Extract in the market. W. A. WHITTEY, Druggist, Chestnut Hill. BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. The genuine has signature Johann Hoff on Neck Label.
